common lot of public men, and to day there is going the rounds of the lower class of Republican journals a shameful story in regard to his private life and moral character. The story is that he seduced, under promise of marriage, one Maria Halpin, a saleswoman in a Buffalo dry goods house; that he deserted this woman and her offspring, and that finally, wearied with her importunities, he had her seized under circumstances of great brutality and conveyed to a private asylum, and that after her release from confinement he compromised with her family by the payment of $500, and thus the matter was dropped.

As if the Halpin story, with all the devilish ingenuity of its concoction, with so many apparently corroborating cirso many apparently corroborating cir-cumstances, was not bad enough, the authors of this vile story add to it the assertion that Cleveland had been often found by the police of Buffalo in a benat-ly drunken condition; that he was guilty of habitual immoralities with women, and that he consorted with blackguards and loves women drinking and features. and loose women, drinking and fighting in their company.

If it could be believed for one moment that these charges were founded upon the truth, then it would be felt that Grover Cleveland was indeed a moral leper, totally unworthy of the support of Christians, or of any people with any pretensions to decency, and the demand for his retirement from the ticket would come in the proper tower form the come in thunder tones from the Demo-cracy of the land. We could not afford to jeopardize the just and righteous cause of the people by countenancing the can-have happened in the city of Buffalo, and have been matters of common report, and that then the citizens of that place, and that then the citizens of that place, without distinction of party—Democrats, Republicans and Independents, churchgoing and non-churchgoing people—should have united together as one man and bestowed the Mayoralty of the city upon the low blackguard that the actor in such scenes as Cleveland is described as figuring in most here. as figuring in must have necessarily been? The supposition is a monstrous absurdity and an insult to the intelligence of the American people. If these accusations are true, then the morality of Buffalo must indeed have been at a low ebb, and the citizens of that place, taking them collectively were even than land, according to this dirty campaign lie, was wallowing in filth and iniquity, we find him submitting to the City Coun-cil of Buffalo the following letter in re-gard to the perils of children and espe-cially of young girls on the streets at a late hour of the night:

BUFFALO, June 5, 1882. My attention has been called, by a committee from the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, to the number of small boys and girls found upon the streets in the night.

I have reson to believe that many of these children are allowed, and some are obliged, by their parents to thus remain in the streets for the ostensible purpose of earning money by selling newspapers or blacking boots. In truth, however, after a certain hour in the evening, the most, if not all the money they receive, they obtain by begging or by false pretenses. In the meantime they are subjected to the worst influences, leading directive to professory pagrancy and grime.

ly to profigacy, vagrancy and crime.

The importance of caring for children who are uncared for by their natural guardians, or who are unmindful of parental restraint, must be apparent to all. od or evil, their influence will be felt in the community; and certainly the attempt to prevent their swelling the criminal class is worth an offort.

It seems to me that no pretext should be permitted to excuse allowing young girls to be on the streets at improper hours, since the result must necessarily be their destruction.

The disposition of the boy (child though he be) to aid in his own support or that of others in an honest, decent way, ought not to be discouraged. But this does not call for his being in the street at late bours, to his infinite damage. morally mentally and physically, and to the danger of society.

I respectfully suggest that this subject be referred to the Committe on Ordinances and the attorney, and that a commit-tee from the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children be invited to co-operate with them in an effort to frame an ordinance which will remedy the evil herein considered.

GROVER CLEVELAND, Mayor. This letter indicates a solicitude in regard to female virtue not at all in keeping with the vicious character that has been given to Grover Creveland by the Republican journals that repeat the slan-ders against his good name, and this, taken into connection with thousands of incidents in the career of the man, give the lie to the damaging reports against considering the phenomenal popularity of Cleveland and the handsome support that his own people have given him, it might hardly seem necessary for any Democratic journal to take the trouble of defending him; no defense would seem necessary; but leat it should be said that the story is being covered up and that necessary; but lest it should be said that the story is being covered up and that Demecratic papers are afraid to publish it, we have given our readers the substance of it. It is a pitiful matter, and one that shows how much of depravity goes in with politics and how unscrupulous are those who will go any lengths for party purposes.—Columbia Register.

Who Can Tell ? Some years ago there was a young physician in Texas who was loved by all on account of his gentle, loving disposi-tion. Among his more humble but not on account of his gentle, loving disposition. Among his more humble but not less devoted admirers was a mocking bird that had been born and raised in als garden. The bird took the greatest fancy to him, and when he returned home in the evening would hop round his front steps and then fly to a tree near-by and sing for hours at a time. The bird appeared to be in an ecstacy of delight whenever the doctor was at home. Finally the yellow faver broke out here, and among others, the doctor was stricken down. He lingered for long days and then died. On the might before his death the watchers by his bedside had their attention attracted by the mouroful, sobbing notes that the "doctor's bird" (as they called it) uttered throughout the night. The next day the doctor died, and that night the bird was silent. Aftes the funeral the family opened the room to air it, and when the bed was drawn saide the first thing seen was the mothing bird lying at the head of the bed, dand. How it got there no one know, but there it was, dead, as shough it could not survive the one it loved so well.

One may have all the virtues, and posrom the benign accidents of wealth and ineage, and yet want the one thing which will make his life happy and successful. One of the curious things about such a bereavement is, that the person whom Nature has so impoverished hardly ever, and perhaps never, knows exactly "what it is"—as that renowned ethical philoso-tact. The stranger who comes to trade with him, if he is a merchant, may like the quality of his goods, and may not dislike his prices; but the situation, neverthless, will become uncomfortable in due time; and before he knows the casual customor, whom a dealer with a little tack would have easily retained, goes across the street to fill his subsequent order.

We all know the preacher who lacks We all know the preacher who lacks this lubricating quality, and who rants about matters that iritate persons rather than establish principles, and who very soon comes to grief in his parish. He has been scattering dynamite in the most careless possible way, and wonders why anybody is hurt, and doesn't hear any-thing but the rebound from the explo-

To the politician, tact means often a positive and indispensable capital in trade. It far supersedes talent when it stands alone by itself. It is not proba-ble that there is a single human natur-as is the politician's. He must know everybody, and know their dispositions as well. And the very successful ones manage to do this, and to enter into the various interests which engage different men with au ease and alacrity that reach the very summit of art, while the absence of art is never doubted, or the skill of the thing is not expected. The politician who has tact does not let it desert him the day after the election.

The want of tact in a lawyer will often lose him his case, no matter how well read he is in the law pertaining to well read he is in the law pertaining to to jcopardize the just and righteous cause of the people by countenancing the candidature of any such man.

But the charge is a lie on its face. Is it conceivable that these things could have happened in the city of Buffalo, and have been matters of common report.

Rubbed as Black as a Crow.

Some years ago, when the terrible Yellow Jack" was in Savanuah, a Judge of the Supreme Court of the State was holding session in an upper county, but within twenty-four hours' run, by rail, of the infected city. Quite suddenly, late one afternoon, he was seized with a headache, pan in his back, limbs, etc. Having heard that those were the salutations which Yellow Jack extends to his victime than the resulting them. tims when approaching them, the Judge, in great consternation, applied to a friend who was "posted" for advice. A hot mustard bath was ordered at once. and the Judge was soon laving himself in the irritating fluid. Presently he felt better, and, finding a cake of scap in the bath-tub, he began to apply it quite freely upon his person. After some pleasant exercise in this way, he looked down for the first time on his body and limbs, and to his horror discovered that limbs, and to his horror discovered that he was turning black. His friend was harriedly sent for, came in and declared that the symptoms were intensely ex-pressive of yellow fover.

"But," said the Judge, "I feel no pain;
I feel well." "So much the worse; the absence of pain is a marked symptom."

"Oh," groaned the Judge, "what shall I do?"

"The only hope is in mustard; rub away," was all the advice his friend could give.

And he did rub, with a will. On examination, he was as black as a crow, and the "soap," which a careless servant had dropped into the tub, was discovered to be somebody's patent paste blacking. The Judge survived.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Van Winkle King Cotton Press

Has long been before the public, and is too well known to need any further description. Its chief points of merits are: It takes very little room, is easily handled, and takes so little power; can be used on all kinds of powers—horse, water or steam. Ginning and packing can all go on at the same time, without interfering with the Gin. A two-inch belt will pack a 500 lb. bale of cotton. It saves its cost the first season in labor.

Read the following Testimonial: Read the following Testimonial:

Anderson, S. C.—Mr. John E. Proples—Sir: The Steam Power Van Winkle Cotton Press bought from you last Fall has given entire satisfaction. I packed bales of cotton weighing 660 to 725 lbs, in five minutes with all ease, using a 4-inch belt and 25 lbs. steam. There did not seem any more strain on the Press than with a 450 lb. bale. For durability, strength, lightness of power, small quantity of steam required, economy of space, I deem it the King of all Cotton Presses; especially so as the low price at which it can be bought for puts it within reach of every man running a steam Gin. In fact I would not be without it for twice its cost. I would not be without it for twice its cost. I would advise all my friends to buy one of Van Winkle's Steam Power Cotton Presses, as you will save its cost in labor in one year.

WOMAN AND THE BABY.

What a puzzle the little child is in the domestic economy. How the mother gives of her own life and strength to support the life of her blessed little youngster!

How the child kicks, and laughs, and crows! How the child grows, and is heavier and heavier every day. And yet she lifts him, and tosses him, and plays with him, and takes care of him by day and by night.

Is it any wonder the mother breaks down? Her back aches. Her stomach fails her. Her liver is bad. Her blood is thin, and she says she feels poorly. Yes, yes, poorly—very poorly. Give mother a bottle of Brown's Iron Bitters. She needs the iron in her blood, which that will put there. She must have strength, or she will be a confirmed old invalid. Brown's Iron Bitters helps worn and weary women into new life, cheerfulness, and vigor. Tell all the mothers you know.

POISON OAK
Seems to yield every time to treatment with Swift's Specific.

Spartanburg, S. C., March 13, 1884.
Your most valuable medicine (Swift, Specific) has done me so much good that feel like saying this for the benefit of them who suffer like I did. I was poisoned by poison oak, and saw not a well day for in years, until I used Swift's Specific. In the six years I used almost every kind of accoinc, but none had the desired effect. After using six bottles of Swift's Specific I are restored to perfect health—with not a signal that augul poison left! Yours tuly, DAVID NESBITT. is located a SEWANEE TENN, upon the Cumberland Plateau, 2,000 feet above the sea level. This School, under the special patronage of the Bishops of he Protestant-Episcopal Church in the South and Southwest, offers the healthiest residence and the best advantages, both moral and educational, is its Grammar School and its Collegiate and Theological Departments. For the special chaims of the University for patronage, apply for documents to the Rev. TELFAIR HODGSON, D. D., Vice-Chancellor, Sewanee, Tenn. DAVID NESSITT.

POISON OAK I had for thirty-eight years suffered ever spring and summer with Poison Oak, which I contracted in bathing when a boy. I tried everything for it, including man physicians, but without any benefit. I took six bottles of Swift's Specific (S. 8; 8; four years areo, and it cured me sound see Remarkable Results.

I have had remarkable success with Swift's Specific; have cured several case permanently in a very short time. Out case which I am now treating was given to die, and after using three bottles is sold recovered that I think one more bottlew cure her. The most remarkable case of all was a lady with medulary cancer of the womb, for whom I had no hope whatera. After using one bottle I am satisfied the will soon be cured.
